Julie Cunningham has served the Oklahoma Water Resources Board for 25 years in technical, policy, and executive capacities in all divisions. As director, Ms. Cunningham leads the agency in accomplishing its complex mission of planning for and managing the state's water resources and administering multi-billion dollar infrastructure financing programs to foster water supply reliability and economic and environmental resiliency. Director Cunningham is immediate past president of the Association of Western State Engineers and Interstate Council on Water Policy and is commissioner on four interstate river compacts. She is an Oklahoma City native, an Oklahoma State University alumnus, and is passionate about transforming the water industry and state policies and services to promote innovation, efficiency, and opportunity for Oklahomans.
